COURT CLERK MAGISTRATE I

PROBLEMS AND CHALLENGES

Challenges include professionally and appropriately handling intensive workloads within definite and limiting timelines and with available staff. This is challenging because it requires maintaining knowledge of ever-changing codes, rules, and job requirements that apply to a broad variety of cases brought before the court; and having the training and experience needed to handle all types of situations. Further challenged to ensure completion and correctness of case processing, challenging because there are so many components and participants to monitor. Additionally challenged to keep pace with activities when court is in session, e.g., changes to calendar and plea agreements, adding charges and filings in the courtroom, keeping up with Judges and accurately entering sentencing in computer systems, etc.

Problems include dealing with upset litigants, constant interruptions in the work flow, the general assumption that working for the court means you can answer all questions and assist with all problems, communication difficulties, finding time to monitor and track fines that are due and following up if not paid, finding and fixing accounting errors, the extent of incompleteness and incorrectness that can happen throughout case processing, and knowing where to locate files and having enough storage for the large amount of files created.

DECISION-MAKING AUTHORITY

Decisions include when to call for additional help from law enforcement; the most appropriate way to handle situations without giving legal advice; if fines are past due and if further action is required; most appropriate way to find and fix accounting errors; who is allowed to access case files according to circuit rules; priority of workload; what should be filed in case files and what should not if manual guidelines are not clear; approval of employees' leave and flex time, and changing positions to accommodate work flow.

Decisions referred include final approval of new hires; resolution of staff issues and work improvement plans; handling extremely difficult individuals and credible threats toward self and other UJS staff; directions for dealing with shortages of funds; legal questions which are referred to the Circuit Court Administrator; when a court order is required for access to certain case types; protocols for equipment repair or replacement; and solutions to programming and technical issues.

CONTACT WITH OTHERS and PURPOSE

Daily contact with staff to organize, prioritize, and monitor workload assignment and accomplishment; routine contact with the public, non-judicial agencies, attorneys, defendants and their families to provide customer service; with public, staff, bank staff, sheriffs' offices, state's attorneys' staff, county officials and personnel, defendants, attorneys, victims, Department of Corrections (DOC) staff, court services, Judges, and finance staff regarding financial management and distribution; with all parties involved in actions involving case processing to collect missing information, money owed, etc.; with Judges, staff, attorneys, abstract companies, the public, and defendants regarding access to stored records; with Judges, staff, attorneys, State's Attorneys, jail staff, public, court services, defendants and family members during courtroom proceedings; with UJS help desk staff, IT personnel, accounting staff, and repairmen regarding technical assistance and computer maintenance; and with Judges, attorneys, State's Attorneys, plaintiffs, defendants, sheriffs' offices, police
